world is the impact of external forces on our sensory surfaces so says science itself there is no clairvoyance how then can we have parlayed this meager sensory input into a full blown scientific theory of the world this is itself a scientific question the pursuit of it with free use of scientific theory is what i call naturalized epistemology the roots of reference falls within that domain its more specific concern within that domain is reference to concrete and abstract objects what such reference consists in and how we achieve it part i is a statement of general psychological presumptions regarding perception and learning the underlying notions of cause and disposition are examined in a philosophical spirit in part ii those considerations are brought to bear more particularly on the learning of language part ii comes firmly to grips with the nature of reification and reference the process is inseparable from language and unequivocally identifiable only to the degree that the language resembles ours in certain structural respects stages of reification are sorted out rudimentary to full fledged the full phase is heralded by the use of the relative clause with its relative pronoun and subsidiary pronouns it is these pronouns that recur in logical notation as the bound variables of quantification part iii concludes with a conjectural sketch of the development of reification in the race and the individual especial attention is directed to the positing of abstract objects properties classes numbers it is traced in large part to the serendipity of fruitful confusions truth after all can issue from fallacious proofs to condemn the outcome for its fallacious origin is simply to add the genetic fallacy to what had gone before let us count our blessings the definitive resource for trauma survivors their loved ones and helpers trauma can take many forms from witnessing a violent crime or surviving a natural disaster to living with the nursing education business and related disciplines why do we do the things we do over a decade in the making this game changing book is robert sapolsky's genre shattering attempt to answer that question as fully as perhaps only he could looking at it from every angle sapolsky's storytelling concept is delightful but it also has a powerful intrinsic logic he starts by looking at the factors that bear on a person's reaction in the precise moment a behavior occurs and then hops back in time from there in stages ultimately ending up at the deep history of our species and its genetic inheritance and so the first category of explanation is the neurobiological one what goes on in a person's brain a second before the behavior happens then he pulls out to a slightly larger field of vision a little earlier in time what sight sound or smell triggers the nervous system to produce that behavior and then what hormones act hours to days earlier to change how responsive that individual is to the stimuli which trigger the nervous system by now he has increased our field of vision so that we are thinking about neurobiology and the sensory world of our environment and endocrinology in trying to explain what happened sapolsky keeps going next to what features of the environment affected that person's brain and then back to the childhood of the individual and then to their genetic makeup finally he expands the view to encompass factors larger than that one individual how culture has shaped that individual's group what ecological factors helped shape that culture and on and on back to evolutionary factors thousands and even millions of years old the result is one of the most dazzling tours de horizon of the science of human behavior ever attempted a majestic synthesis that harvests cutting edge research across a range of disciplines to provide a subtle and nuanced perspective on why we ultimately do the things we do for good and for ill sapolsky builds on this understanding to wrestle with some of our deepest and thorniest questions relating to tribalism and xenophobia hierarchy and competition morality and free will and war and peace wise humane often very funny behave is a towering achievement powerfully humanizing and downright heroic
