of a young marine lieutenant waino martin and his comrades in bravo company who are dropped into the mountain jungle of vietnam as boys and forced to fight their way into manhood standing in their way are not merely the north vietnamese but also monsoon and mud leeches and tigers disease and malnutrition almost as daunting it turns out are the obstacles they discover between each other racial tension competing ambitions and duplicitous superior officers but eventually their company finds itself surrounded and outnumbered by a massive enemy regiment the marines are thrust into the raw and all consuming terror of combat the experience will change them forever written by a highly decorated marine veteran over the course of thirty years matterhorn is a spellbinding and unforgettable story that brings to life an entire world both its horrors and its thrills and seems destined to become a classic of combat literature what are the grand dynamics that drive the accumulation and distribution of capital what are the questions about the long term evolution of inequality the concentration of wealth and the prospects for future economic growth lie at the heart of political economy but satisfactory answers have been hard to find due to a lack of adequate data and clear guiding theories in this work the author analyzes a unique collection of data from twenty countries ranging as far back as the eighteenth century to uncover key economic and social patterns and findings transform debate and set the agenda for the next generation of thought about wealth and inequality it shows that modern economic growth and the diffusion of knowledge have allowed us to avoid inequality on the apocalyptic scale predicted by karl marx but we have not modified the deep structures of capitalism and inequality as much as we thought in the optimistic decades following world war ii the main driver of inequality is the tendency of returns on capital to exceed the rate of economic growth today threatens to generate new and more inequalities that stir discontent and undermine democratic values if political action is not taken but economic trends are not acts of god political action has curbed dangerous inequalities in the past the author says we may do so again this original work reorients our understanding of economic history and confronts us with sobering understand how covid 19 disrupted our social and economic systems and what changes will be needed to create a more inclusive resilient and sustainable world going forward thierry malleret founder of the monthly barometer and klaus schwab founder and executive chairman of the world economic forum explore what the root causes of these crisis were and why they matter the need for a great reset theirs is a worrying yet hopeful analysis covid 19 has created a great disruption in our global social economic and political systems but the power of human beings lies in being foresighted and having the ingenuity at least to a certain extent to take their destiny into their hands and to plan for the future this is the purpose of this book to shake up and to show the deficiencies which were manifest in the global system even before covid broke out on august 7 1998 bombs exploded at two united states embassies in east africa american anthropologist susan hirsch and her husband jamal a kenyan were among the thousands of victims and jamal died from there hirsch went on to face devastating grief with the help of friends and families on two continents observing the mourning rituals of her husband s community to honor him and the alleged bombers were captured and sent to new york to stand trial she witnessed firsthand the attention america s criminal justice system to handle terrorism through the law in the moment of greatest calamity a story a tale told on many levels personal anthropological legal and finally political the book s central characters describe hirsch s experience of the bombing trials in a manhattan federal court in 2001 including a behind the scenes look at the investigation leading up to the trial encounters with some of the fbi s leading terrorism investigators and many moments of drama from the proceedings themselves hirsch reveals the inner workings of that results from her opposition to the death penalty and concludes that the trial was both flawed and indispensable hirsch s story of this tragedy and its legal aftermath comes to life through and is enhanced by her skills as a social scientist her unique viewpoint makes it unlike any other story about terrorism a groundbreaking tour of the human mind that illuminates the biological nature of our inner worlds and our emotions through gripping moving and at times harrowing clinical stories a scintillating and moving and of the human brain and emotions nature beautifully connects the inner feelings within all human beings. Deep insights from modern psychiatry and neuroscience. Robert Lefkowitz, Nobel laureate Karl Deisseroth spent his life pursuing truths about the human mind both as a renowned clinical psychiatrist and as a researcher creating and developing the revolutionary field of optogenetics which uses light to help decipher the brain's workings. In his projections he combines his knowledge of the brain's inner circuitry with a deep empathy for his patients to examine what mental illness reveals about the human mind and the origin of human suffering. How the broken can illuminate the unbroken through cutting edge research and gripping case studies. Deisseroth's own patients' projections tell a larger story about the material origins of human emotion and the gap between the ancient circuits of our brain and the poignant moments of suffering in our daily lives. Stories of Deisseroth's patients are rich with humanity and shine an unprecedented light on the self and the ways in which it can break down. A young woman with an eating disorder reveals how the mind can rebel against the brain's most primitive drives of hunger and thirst. An older man smothered into silence by depression and dementia shows how humans evolved to feel not only joy but also its absence and a lonely woman far from her homeland teaches both the importance and challenges of deep social bonds. This illuminating literary and essential projection is a revelatory, immensely powerful work. It transforms our understanding not only of the brain but of ourselves as social beings, giving vivid illustrations through and resonant human stories of our yearning for connection and meaning.
