The Bubbling Cauldron 1995 as the population of older americans grows it is becoming more racially and ethnically diverse differences in health by racial and ethnic status could be increasingly consequential for health policy and programs such differences are not simply a matter of education or ability to pay for health care for instance asian americans and hispanics appear to be in better health on a number of indicators than white americans despite on average lower socioeconomic status the reasons are complex including possible roles for such factors as selective migration risk behaviors exposure to various stressors patient attitudes and geographic variation in health care this volume produced by a multidisciplinary panel considers such possible explanations for racial and ethnic health differentials within an integrated framework it provides a concise summary of available research and lays out a research agenda to address the many uncertainties in current knowledge it recommends for instance looking at health differentials across the life course and deciphering the links between factors presumably producing differentials and biopsychosocial mechanisms that lead to impaired health

Outside America 2005 a new study of those excluded from the national narrative of the west dan moos challenges both traditional and revisionist perspectives in his exploration of the role of the mythology of the american west in the creation of a national identity while moos concurs with contemporary scholars who note that the myths of the american west depended in part upon the exclusion of certain groups african americans native americans and mormons he notes that many scholars in their eagerness to identify and validate such excluded positions have given short shrift to the cultural power of the myths they seek to debunk that cultural power was such moos notes that these disenfranchised groups themselves sought to harness it to their own ends through the active appropriation of the terms of those myths in advocating for their own inclusion in the national narrative that because the construction of american culture was never designed to accommodate these outsiders their writings display a division between their imagined place in the narrative of the nation and their effacement within the real west marked by intolerance and inequality
