heart of the race is a powerful corrective to a version of Britain's history from which black women have long been excluded. It reclaims and records black women's place in that history, documenting their day-to-day struggles, their experiences of education, work, and health care, and the personal and political struggles they have waged to preserve a sense of identity and community. First published in 1985 and winner of the Martin Luther King Memorial Prize that year, Heart of the Race is a testimony to the collective experience of black women in Britain and their relationship to the British state throughout its long history of slavery, empire, and colonialism. This new edition includes a foreword by Lola Okolosie and an interview with the authors chaired by Heidi Safia Mirza, focusing on the impact of their book since publication and its continuing relevance today.

Winner 2017 Rachel Carson Prize, Society for the Social Studies of Science in 2002. Sierra Leone emerged from a decade-long civil war, seeking international attention and development aid. Its government faced a dilemma: though devastated by conflict, Sierra Leone had a low prevalence of HIV. However, like most African countries, it stood to benefit from a large influx of foreign funds specifically targeted at HIV/AIDS prevention and care. What Adia Benton chronicles in this ethnographically rich and often moving book is how one war-ravaged nation reoriented itself as a country suffering from HIV at the expense of other more pressing health concerns. During her fieldwork in the capital, Freetown, a city of one million people, at least thirty NGOs administered internationally funded programs that included HIV/AIDS prevention and care. Benton probes why HIV exceptionalism—the idea that HIV is an exceptional disease requiring an exceptional response—continues to guide approaches to the epidemic worldwide and especially in Africa, even in low-prevalence settings. In the fourth decade since the emergence of HIV/AIDS, many today are questioning whether the effort and money spent on this health crisis has, in fact, helped or exacerbated the problem. HIV exceptionalism does this and more, asking what are the unanticipated consequences that HIV/AIDS development programs engender. This document is one of two evidence-based cornerstones of the World Health Organization's new initiative to develop and implement evidence-based guidelines for family planning.

The first cornerstone, The Medical Eligibility Criteria for Contraceptive Use, third edition, published in 2004, provides guidance for who can use contraceptive methods safely. This document, The Selected Practice Recommendations for Contraceptive Use, second edition, provides guidance for how to use contraceptive methods safely and effectively once they are deemed to be medically appropriate. The recommendations contained in this document are the product of a process that culminated in an expert working group meeting held at the World Health Organization, Geneva, 13–16 April 2004.

The Development, Manufacturing, and Use of Contraceptive Methods from the Late Nineteenth Century to the Present, viewed from the perspective of reproductive justice, the beginning of the modern contraceptive era.

began in 1882 when dr aletta jacobs opened the first birth control clinic in amsterdam the founding of this facility and the clinical provision of contraception that it enabled marked the moment when physicians started to take the prevention of pregnancy seriously as a medical concern in this volume in the mit press essential knowledge series donna drucker traces the history of modern contraception outlining the development manufacturing and use of contraceptive methods from the opening of dr jacobs s clinic to the present drucker approaches the subject from the perspective of reproductive justice the right to have a child the right not to have a child and the right to parent children safely and healthily drucker describes contraceptive methods available before the pill including the diaphragm dispensed at the jacobs clinic and condom spermicidal jellies and periodic abstinences she looks at the development and dissemination of the pill and its chemical descendants describes technological developments in such non hormonal contraceptives as the cervical cap and timing methods including the rhythm method favored by the roman catholic church and explains the concept of reproductive justice finally drucker considers the future of contraception the adaptations of existing methods new forms of distribution and ongoing efforts needed to support contraceptive access worldwide in this brutal indictment of the birth control industry nicole j grant documents the history of the dalkon shield case and places the controversy within a larger historical and social context examining the ways in which social conditions affect women s choices about contraception drawing upon an analysis of thirty years worth of articles in medical journals and popular magazines family planning literature medical texts government documents and transcripts from interviews with women discussing procreative choices grant examines the iud s place in the history of contraception and the politics of bringing the dalkon shield to the market including the commercial bias of the device s inventor and chief medical consultant she discusses the dissemination of false and misleading advertising about the device the manufacturer s disregard of evidence suggesting that it was unsafe and the stake of various family planning agencies in promoting its use she goes on to examine the social conditions under which women chose to use the dalkon shield and considers the fact that many women wishing to exercise control over procreation freely selected it over alternative forms of contraception even though they knew there were associated risks according to grant the dalkon shield case is not a historical anomaly today advances in technology are making new methods of contraception available to women but these methods carry risks as serious as those associated with the dalkon shield moreover the social context in which women are making decisions about contraception is much the same as it was during the time when the dalkon shield was widely used grant concludes her study by proposing ways in which women can enhance their informed risk benefit analysis of all options while maintaining their autonomy this book provides the only comprehensive examination of contraceptive social marketing it includes a full description of the most important of these programs documenting a form of international assistance that has attracted over 1 billion from governments and other donors the book contains a wealth of previously unpublished material that illustrates this remarkable story the author challenges the widespread belief that family planning can only be made available through medically oriented programs and that foreign assistance must be catalytic rather than long term let every child be wanted with its comprehensive overview anecdotes and strategies is a useful handbook for philanthropic agencies independent charities and government programs it will also be valuable for
