having acted heroically as soldier and officer despite his famous misgivings about war's rationale and conduct he left behind a body of poetry that sensitively captures the pity, rage, valor, and futility of the conflict. In this new biography, Guy Cuthbertson provides a fresh account of Owen's life and formative influences: the lower-middle-class childhood that he tried to escape, the places he lived in, from Birkenhead to Bordeaux, class anxieties, and his religious doubts, his sexuality, and friendships, his close relationship with his mother, and his childlike personality. Cuthbertson chronicles the great poet's growth to poetic maturity, illuminates the social strata of the extra-Edwardian era, and adds rich context to how Owen's enduring verse can be understood. This collection of poems by Wilfred Owen, including all his classic wartime poetry based on his experiences in World War I and several poems not in the 1920s edition (1914), shows them for what they are: Dulce et decorum est, The Sentry, The Dead Beat, Strange Meeting, Greater Love, Apologia Pro Poemate Meo, Mental Cases, Parable of the Old Men and the Young, Arms and the Boy, Anthem for Doomed Youth, The Send-Off, Insensibility, Dulce et Decorum Est, The Sentry, etc. A moving and powerful representation of the horrors of life on the front lines, not to be missed by fans and collectors of war poetry.

Wilfred Owen and Siegfried Sassoon, both suffering from shell shock, were sent to convalesce at Craiglockhart Hospital, Edinburgh, in 1917. Owen, who referred to himself as 'the poet's poet', was unpublished at the time; it was the influence and encouragement of Sassoon during this period that shaped Owen's work. Sassoon was also instrumental in publishing Owen's work posthumously after the war. Here, for the first time, collected in a single volume are poems written in Edinburgh of Wilfred Owen and Siegfried Sassoon. These Edinburgh poems highlight the significance of the time these poets spent together in and around the city. The horrors of the First World War released a great outburst of emotion from the soldiers who fought in it, as well as many other giants of world literature. Wilfred Owen, Rupert Brooke, and W.B. Yeats are just some of the poets whose works are featured in this anthology. The raw emotion unleashed in these poems still has the power to move readers today, as well as poems detailing the miseries of war, the poems on themes of bravery, friendship, and loyalty, and this collection shows how, in the depths of despair, the human spirit can still triumph. 'If I should die, think of me that there's some corner of a foreign field that is for ever England from this soldier to anthem for doomed youth. Rupert Brooke and Wilfred Owen are two of our loved poets from the heroic lost generation of the First World War. Brooke's work was well known before the war, with the now iconic lines 'Stands the church clock at three and is there honey still for tea from the old vicarage, Grantchester and Wilfred Owen, awarded the Military Cross, had been writing poetry since he was ten years old. This superb collection is the perfect introduction to two of our greatest poets of all time. Of the First World War, Wilfred Owen most fires the imagination today. This is the comprehensive literary biography of the greatest WW1 poet, Wilfred Owen, tragically killed in battle just a few days before the armistice. Now, during the centenary year of his death, this biography honours Owen's brief yet remarkable life and the enduring legacy.
