in the united states some populations suffer from far greater disparities in health than others those disparities are caused not only by fundamental differences in health status across segments of the population but Mining also because of inequities in factors that impact health status so called determinants of health only part of an individual s health status depends on his or her behavior and choice community wide problems like poverty unemployment poor education inadequate housing poor public transportation interpersonal violence and decaying neighborhoods also contribute to health inequities as well as the historic and ongoing interplay of structures policies and norms that shape lives when these factors are not optimal in a community it does not mean they are intractable such inequities can be mitigated by social policies that can shape health in powerful ways communities in action pathways to health equity seeks to delineate the causes of and the solutions to health inequities in the united states this report

focuses on what communities can do to promote health equity what actions are needed by the many and varied stakeholders that are part of communities or support them as well as the root causes and structural barriers that need to be overcome now a national bestseller climate change is real but it's not the end of the world it is not even our most serious environmental problem michael shellenberger has been fighting for a greener planet for decades he helped save the world's last unprotected redwoods he co created the predecessor to today's green new deal and he led a successful effort by climate scientists and activists to keep nuclear plants operating preventing a spike of emissions but in 2019 as some claimed billions of people are going to die contributing to rising anxiety including among adolescents shellenberger decided that as a lifelong environmental activist leading energy expert and father of a teenage daughter he needed to speak out to separate science from fiction despite decades of news media attention many remain ignorant of basic facts carbon emissions peaked and have been declining in most developed nations for over a decade deaths from extreme weather even in poor nations declined 80 percent over the last four decades and the risk of earth warming to very high temperatures is increasingly unlikely thanks to slowing population growth and abundant natural gas curiously the software people who are the most alarmist about the problems also tend to oppose the obvious solutions what's really behind the rise of apocalyptic environmentalism there are powerful financial interests there are desires for status and power but most of all there is a desire among supposedly secular people for transcendence this spiritual impulse can be natural and healthy but in preaching fear without love and guilt without redemption the new religion is failing to satisfy our deepest psychological and existential needs shows a new generation of teachers
