Education and Technology Support for Children and Young Adults With ASD and Learning Disabilities 2015-10-27 among the disabilities covered at the state and federal levels, autism and related conditions are a sharply growing diagnostic category among children and young adults. In education, administrators and practitioners working with affected learners are continually faced with confronting difficult problems such as getting adequate personnel training and choosing appropriate tools and techniques that best fit the specific needs of their students while at the same time satisfying their budget. Technical resources, curriculum, and profile of the ASD population they serve, the choice of appropriate tools is especially complex due to the intrinsic connection between technical specifications, educational therapeutic methods, and the wide variety of ASDs and related conditions. In this respect, tools chosen to support children may need to target those diagnosed not only with ASD but also with such comorbidity conditions as attention deficit disorder. The instructional strategies and use of technology currently have room for improvement for online hybrid and face-to-face counseling settings. Education and technology support for children and young adults with ASD and learning disabilities provides an in-depth analysis on the use of available technology solutions, instructional design methods, and assessment techniques in the context of standards and regulations in classroom or counseling settings. The chapters contain theoretical analyses, vital practical information, and case studies that can function as guidelines for those involved in helping children and young adults with ASD or learning disabilities in online hybrid or face-to-face environments while highlighting topics such as inclusive education, online gaming environments, assistive technologies, and cognitive development. This book is ideally intended for administrators, instructional technology specialists, special education faculty, counselors, instructional designers, course developers, social workers, and psychologists, along with practitioners, stakeholders, researchers, and academicians interested in education and technology support for children and young adults with ASD and learning disabilities.
