clarence king was the founding director of the u s geological survey and used his standing to integrate science into late nineteenth century political debates about foreign policy immigration and social reform in the mid 1930s robert marshall founded the environmental advocacy group the wilderness society which transformed the face of natural preservation in america committed to social justice marshall blended forest ecology and pragmatic philosophy to craft a natural science ethic that extended the reach of science into political discussions about the restructuring of society prompted by urbanization and economic crisis rachel carson deservedly gets credit for launching the modern environmental movement with her 1962 classic silent spring she made a generation of americans aware of the social costs inherent in the human manipulation of the natural world and used natural science to critique established institutions and offer an alternative vision of a healthy and diverse society as king marshall and carson became increasingly wary of the social costs of industrialization they used their scientific work to address problems of ecological and social imbalance even as science became professionalized and compartmentalized these scientists worked to keep science relevant to broader intellectual debates john herron offers a new take on king marshall and especially carson and their significance that emphasizes the importance of their work to environmental political and cultural
